By: Gary C. Rosen

Dear Clients and Friends:

With the federal government issuing a state of emergency due to the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) and the World Health Organization characterizing the situation as a global pandemic, I'd like to share our promise to you during this unprecedented time:

Becker's Business Continuity Plan

Our top priority is always the health, safety, and well-being of our colleagues, clients, and their families. We are actively monitoring the evolving situation and following guidelines issued by federal, state, and local health officials.

Please know that Becker has a business continuity plan in place that enables us to continue to provide our clients with uninterrupted service should any of our office locations close. All Becker team members have the ability to work remotely to deliver the same high-level service that our clients have come to know and respect.

We Are Here for You

First and foremost, we are thinking about you. We greatly appreciate the healthcare workers, local communities, and governments around the world who are on the front line working to contain COVID-19. The continuously evolving developments have created an environment of complexity and uncertainty that no doubt has impacted your business in some way. Now more than ever, Becker is here to serve as your trusted partner as you navigate this challenge.

We will continue to communicate with our clients over the coming days and encourage you to reach out to any member of our Becker team should you have any questions or concerns.

For over 47 years, Becker has been and remains committed to serving our clients, our team members, and our communities. Together, we will succeed.

Sincerely,

Gary C. Rosen
