Becker, a multi-practice commercial law firm with attorneys, lobbyists, and other professionals at offices throughout the East Coast, announced its representation of HP Inc. to provide lobbying services on the federal level in Washington, DC, and on the state level in Sacramento, California.

Headquartered in Palo Alto, California, HP has a technology product and service portfolio of personal systems, printers, and 3D printing solutions.

Becker's Government Relations team will be led by federal lobbyist Omar Franco. Mr. Franco will be overseeing efforts in Washington, DC, with Becker's growing team of lobbyists, and members of the team will also maintain representation at the state level in Sacramento.

Mr. Franco remarked, "We are excited to be working with another marquee brand. This is an opportunity to expand our client service further into California, and work at both the state and federal levels."

Government Law and Lobbying has been a core practice for Becker since its founding in 1973. The firm's team of lawyers and lobbyists includes several who have served in high-level government positions and distinguished themselves in the political and legislative arenas in state, local, and federal government.

Becker's Federal Lobbying practice began in 2011 with the addition of two Capitol Hill Chiefs of Staff and the Legislative Director of a US Senator. The bipartisan powerhouse team quickly grew the practice to ten lobbyists and a portfolio of public and private clients throughout the United States including Paramount, 3M, UPS, IHeartMedia, FOX, the Motion Picture Association, NAHREP, the Latino Coalition, Virginia Port Authority, the University of Miami, Hennepin County, MN, and Palm Beach County, FL, among others.
