Becker & Poliakoff continued to fare well in the latest South Florida Business Journal rankings and awards. The firm was ranked number 17 in the SFBJ's Top Law Firms in South Florida for 2017 edition.

Individually, managing shareholder Gary C. Rosen, Miami office managing shareholder Perry M. Adair and West Palm Beach managing shareholder Robert Rubinstein were named 2017 Power Leaders in Law for their legal acumen in advising clients and managing the firm.

The Power Leader recognition offers insight into what makes these attorneys so successful, motivates them to excel and what, outside of their careers, they enjoy.

Asked about what drives him, Gary Rosen said: "As the firm's CEO, my focus is on the firm's success, today and in the future, and on the professional development of the people who have chosen to make Becker & Poliakoff their home."

When asked if he could ask one person one question, Perry Adair said: "I would ask my father how he made it all look so easy."

Robert Rubinstein said he grew up in Queens, NY, and enjoys representing his community association clients.
